POWER PLAY & POLITICS

FRIDAY LATE 26 October 2018, 18:45-22:00

Continuing our celebration of women artists through time, we turn our focus to the Eighties, a decade of contrasts that shaped contemporary society. Subcultures, passionate protests and pop-culture unfold through our series of talks and workshops.

EXHIBITIONS

A chance to explore our latest exhibitions after dark

Poster Girls

Told through original London Transport posters, other works and personal effects, follow the artists' stories from 1910 to contemporary times, unearthing how each era influenced their lives and work.

A Exterior Media Gallery (level 1 and mezzanine)
18:45-22:00

Expanding London

Explore how London's expanding transport network impacts those visiting, living, and working in our city, among illustrated posters looking at line extensions, suburbs, and moving through London.

B Poster Parade (level 1)

Girls just wanna have fun? Power dressing in the 1980s

Bold and unapologetic, 1980s fashion is associated with empowerment and innovation. From pinstripes and shoulder pads to lacy rah-rah skirts with neon socks, come and explore the best, and worst, things women wore while seizing control - in the boardroom, in the bedroom and beyond.

With fashion curator and exhibition designer Jenna Rossi-Camus, recent co-curator of T-shirt: Cult – Culture – Subversion at the Fashion and Textile Museum.

Docklands before the big money

Glimpse into the Docklands past; a remote island connected by just two roads – a world away from its transition into Canary Wharf. See the tale unfold in intimate snapshots of a lost landscape and community, forever changed by the DLR opening in 1987.

Photographer Mike Seaborne has captured London since 1979, preserving the shifting landscape in film. Pick up his new book The Isle of Dogs, Before the big money, published by Hoxton Mini Press, documenting the Isle of Dogs transformation from the beating heart of industrial East London to Canary Wharf.
